WOOD LEADS IN BIG POLL OVER NATION

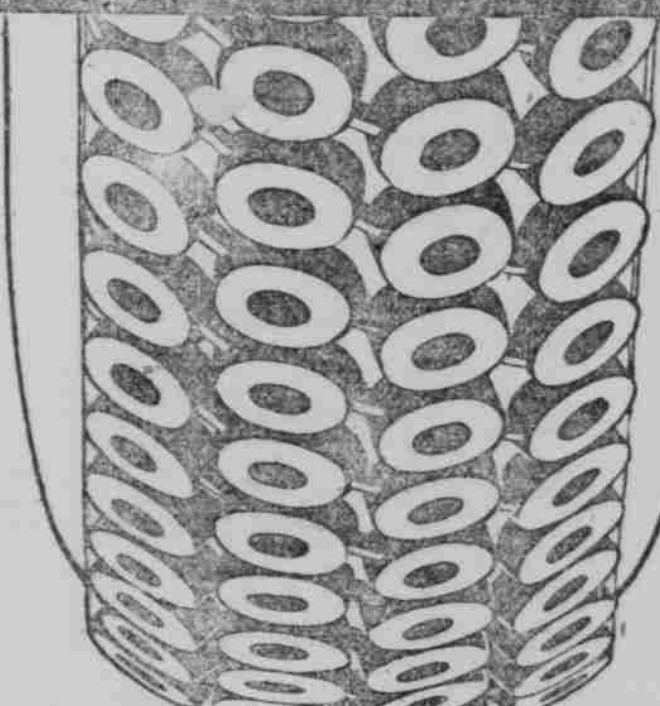

The sixth week of the nation-wide poll of the Literary Digest reveals Leonard Wood still in the lead. On the week's return General Wood increased his lead over Hiram Johnson from 14,899 to 15,345, and over Mr. Hoover by more than 4,000 votes. "Figures," comments the Digest, "that harmonize well with the relative popularity of the three candidates as revealed by the total vote, which has now reached 1,500,000 ballots."

fairly well-distributed over all parts of the country. The Digest says that together during the week Wood, Hoover and Johnson have received as they have from the first, practically one-half of the total returns, the other half being scattered so widely that only Mr. McAdoo, with a percentage of 8.5, is within hailing distance of them. "It is practically the unanimous verdict, at least of hundreds of editors, north, south, east and west," says the Digest, "that the balloting gives a genuine indication of the way the United States will vote for its next President." In the totals at the end of the week Leonard Wood has 246,301 first choice votes; Hiram Johnson, 230,353, and Herbert Hoover, 209,468. Governor Lowden comes next with 110,133. Iowa and Illinois gave to Lowden a large proportion of his vote.

Why City Rents are High

(National Crop Improvement Service) "T us why it is that every city, village and town is crowded to the limits. It is stated that in Chicago there are more than 20,000 dwellings wanted. This, of course, is welcome to a certain class of real estate men, especially those who are interested in the older parts of town which have been neglected in the interests of the newer districts. In a way this is good for cities to go back and reclaim its rundown property, but this, of course, will not meet the demand.

"The abandonment of farm life by men and boys during the last year for the city, has left more than 24,000 habitable New York farm houses vacant, according to estimates by Prof. Warren of Cornell.

"No doubt this is true in other states as well, and while it may be said that it is not the interest of the farmer to strike, still the hired men and girls are flocking to the bright lights where wages are high and quarters comfortable," says Mr. Frank Baackes, V. P. American Steel & Wire company.

"Farm wages are going up, but they will have to go a good deal faster. Prof. Warren says that an unmarried hand is now averaging $52.25 per month and board, while a married man is receiving $68.50 in addition to a house for himself and family and some garden truck
